

The Archangel Series

Raguel The Eye of God

One of the seven archangels listed in the Enoch writing, he is of the order of Principalities, and angel of the Earth, a guard of the 2nd (or 4th) Heaven, and watching over the good behavior of his fellow angels. He is known especially to "take vengeance upon the world of luminaries." Basically meaning that he is internal affairs. He hunts down rogue or fallen angels and brings them to account.

Raguel is also known as an angel of ice and snow, calling forth other angels during the Final Judgement to deal with the unpure. As such, he seems a fairly frightening character as a hunter, judge and dispenser of holy justice, but he can also be seen as a protector from injustice and chaos, and guiding his fellows to their righteous paths.

Here are the translations of the Hebrew words on Raguel's seal:

PAFYEA	RAGUEL	Means: "Friend of God"
XHOPEK	CHOREF	"Winter"
APTAFON	ARGAGON	A Name of God
TZAEAK	TZEDEK	"Justice"

In Babylonian, he might be known simply as "Rag", which is something of a lawman/prosecutor. A "Ragumu" was a suit brought against a defendant.
In Sumerian: Rig.

About The Series

Based on a combination of Christian, Judaic & Islamic legends & history, I was inspired to render these mysterious creatures in their more mysterious and dramatic light. All too often angels are depicted as "cute" or "docile", and I wanted a view of the warriors, the secret-keepers, the guides and messengers. Of course, this does fall under my basic love of archetypes, but my methodology reflected my thoughts to some degree, in that I wanted to capture the timeless conundrum of the angel concept. The particular class of Archangels seemed the best route for this thought, as most people are familiar with the big names, Michael and Gabriel. Along with Raphael, these are the only three angels mentioned by names in the Bible. I ended up with two distinct lists of what were classified as Archangels, one was a group of seven angels who stood before God, the second, a list of 15 (with several of the same names), was more divided by their jobs and personalities. I decided a series of seven would be quicker, though I better conceptualized the bigger list. Therefore I decided to produce the series in two phases, the first is the standard list of seven Archangels. Phase II will be the "complete" list of all 15 (the remaining eight).

The medium for these pieces, which I decided on almost as soon as I started considering the project, is somewhat peculiar. They are rendered as fairly detailed pencil drawings, scanned & altered in Photoshop (mostly just the glow effect), then I add the Angelic Seal and other touches in the background and print it in dull brown ink on parchment paper. The result is a nice "ancient-scroll" impression which is very appropriate. The seals and "signatures" are used in elements of the image, as well as Celestial Angelic Script translations of their names and representations. The seals are recreated in a vector-graphics program and the words are produced "Symbol" font, which is essentially Greek.

Below is an outline of the series, as planned, based on the research and my interpretations. Enjoy!
