

The Archangel Series

Uriel The Gift of God

Uriel, whose name means "God is my light" or "God is Light" or "Radiation of God" or "Fire of God", is ranked variously as a Seraph, Cherub, Regent of the Sun, Flame of God, and Angel of the Presence. Uriel is a spirit of ministrations, peace, ruler over magick, devotion, alchemy, sudden changes ("The Winds of Change"), and charged with Tartarus or Hades. Uriel guards the gates of Eden with the flaming sword of God, awaiting man's return.

According to my research (which although it was vast, is not foolproof), here are the translations of what I believe to be the Hebrew words on the seal:

YPIEA	URIEL	Means: "God has Healed"
ΕΛΟΗΑ	ELOHA	A name of God
ΑΓΛΑ	AGLA	?
EIEH	EIEH	?
ΑΔΟΝΑΨ	ADONAY	"The Lord"

Uriel is said to have passed down alchemy to earth, as well as having given the cabala (the ancient rabbinical book of magic) to the rabbis. Therefore, he is deeply connected to magick.

About The Series

Based on a combination of Christian, Judaic & Islamic legends & history, I was inspired to render these mysterious creatures in their more mysterious and dramatic light. All too often angels are depicted as "cute" or "docile", and I wanted a view of the warriors, the secret-keepers, the guides and messengers. Of course, this does fall under my basic love of archetypes, but my methodology reflected my thoughts to some degree, in that I wanted to capture the timeless conundrum of the angel concept. The particular class of Archangels seemed the best route for this thought, as most people are familiar with the big names, Michael and Gabriel. Along with Raphael, these are the only three angels mentioned by names in the Bible. I ended up with two distinct lists of what were classified as Archangels, one was a group of seven angels who stood before God, the second, a list of 15 (with several of the same names), was more divided by their jobs and personalities. I decided a series of seven would be quicker, though I better conceptualized the bigger list. Therefore I decided to produce the series in two phases, the first is the standard list of seven Archangels. Phase II will be the "complete" list of all 15 (the remaining eight).

The medium for these pieces, which I decided on almost as soon as I started considering the project, is somewhat peculiar. They are rendered as fairly detailed pencil drawings, scanned & altered in Photoshop (mostly just the glow effect), then I add the Angelic Seal and other touches in the background and print it in dull brown ink on parchment paper. The result is a nice "ancient-scroll" impression which is very appropriate. The seals and "signatures" are used in elements of the image, as well as Celestial Angelic Script translations of their names and representations. The seals are recreated in a vector-graphics program and the words are produced "Symbol" font, which is essentially Greek.

Below is an outline of the series, as planned, based on the research and my interpretations. Enjoy!
